

I have received word from Indiana's Attorney General that you would like to fix a law that is not broke. Please, do not lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law protections. I am a stay at home mother of three very small boys. Answering the phone on average of fifteen times a day for unwanted or hang-up calls is not something I have time for. After this new law I receive an average of one to two calls a week that are unwanted. Thanks to the Telephone Privacy Act, my children can get a full nap, we can sleep in on Saturday mornings, and we can eat our meals as a family. I beg you to please keep Hoosier's rights in mind. Don't subject us to unwanted solicitations. I realize that telemarketers have rights to, they have the right to bug the people that want to be bothered by them and to avoid calling those of us who will just hang up on them. Thank you for your time.
